

Key Insights

- President Dacko seeks tangible outcomes from the Addis Ababa Conference, not just symbolic gestures.
- He believes that unity among African nations must coexist with respect for national sovereignty.
- Dacko warns that disregarding established agreements could trigger widespread crises and chaos.
- The establishment of an African Common Market is a priority to enhance trade and economic stability across the continent.
- The speech reflects a balance between the aspiration for unity and the practical considerations of each nation's autonomy.

Questions for consideration

1. What is the purpose of the Addis Ababa Meeting according to President Dacko?

The purpose is to create a foundation for African Unity and to establish concrete agreements that reflect this commitment.

2. Why does President Dacko urge his peers to succeed at this Meeting?

He believes that achieving the ideal of unity is crucial for the prosperity of Africa and that failure could lead to negative consequences for the continent.

3. What reasons does he give to justify a “prosperous and united Africa”?

Dacko argues that unity must be built on mutual respect for sovereignty and existing agreements, as ignoring these could lead to crises.

4. What does Dacko mean by the risks of abrogating signed agreements?

He suggests that abruptly canceling agreements could destabilize relations between nations, leading to widespread and unpredictable crises across Africa.